NEWS RELEASE

Diversity, Quality and Accessibility underline BUILDEX Edmonton Conference seminars.

Edmonton, Alberta – (February 27 2009) - Keep abreast of the latest trends, newest products and growing services in the design, construction and real estate management industries by attending the third edition of BUILDEX Edmonton. Now the overarching brand name for Construct Edmonton, The Homebuilder & Renovator Expo and Design Trends, BUILDEX will showcase over 150 exhibitors and present 30 informative seminars March 17th and 18th at the Shaw Conference Centre.

This fast growing two day exposition and conference has become THE local platform to learn about industry trends, current market challenges and business opportunities. Global issues on design, building practices, project management and the real estate market are addressed by an international panel of industry professionals through the numerous conference workshops and seminars.

Highlights are the keynote panel of international design experts that will address “Design for Change” as well as the informational workshop on Sustainable Development: Sustainability, Green, ECO Friendly - what does it all mean, where did it come from and how do you know if your building has it? This topic is expanded with two excellent case studies on geothermal and solar energy. Of particular note is the recently opened training centre for the Alberta Regional Council of Carpenters where the most current and unique in Alberta Geothermal technology is highlighted.

All seminar attendees receive complimentary admission to the exposition. Show director Paul Maryschak explains “One of the goals of BUILDEX is to ensure an accessible and well rounded program of speakers to complement the trade show component so that following the seminars attendees can apply their learning by viewing relevant product, services while networking with professionals on the trade floor.”

In addition valuable and informative workshops on professional skill development, understanding the current workforce, project management training as well as other multi-disciplinary topics are available. For a complete list of workshops and registration guidelines visit:
